

BID FOR AID OF RUMANIA IN CONFLICT

HUNGARY IS OBSTINATE

Kaiser Visits Vienna to Urge Territorial Concessions to Rumania as Price of Her Neutrality.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Dec. 1.—Rumania will deliver an ultimatum to Austria as soon as the entente allies concentrate 500,000 men in the Balkans, it is reported in Bucharest, says a Balkan news dispatch from that city.

Purpose of Kaiser's Visit.

Paris, Dec. 1.—Diplomatic circles at home believe, says the correspondent of the Journal, that the visit of Emperor William to Vienna was made to reconsider if possible divergent views of Germany and Austria and obtain pledge of territorial sacrifices from Hungary in hope of assuring the neutrality of Rumania.

Alexander Marghioman and P. P. Carp, leaders of Rumanian conservatism, are expected to have assured the Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, when he was in Bucharest, that the benevolent neutrality of Rumania could be counted upon by the Teutonic allies if Germany could induce Austria to cede Transylvania and part of Bessarabia to Rumania. Mr. Carp is said to have promised to bring about changes in the Rumanian cabinet.

Opposition in Hungary.

Negotiations between Berlin and Vienna, the Journal says, were fruitless owing to determined opposition of Hungary, and it is asserted the German ruler is endeavoring to induce Emperor Francis Joseph to consent to the sacrifice of territory upon the understanding that Germany will return to Austria two provinces of Silesia annexed to Prussia in '68.

Summary of Situation.

London, Dec. 1.—The Balkan states are expected to announce both military and diplomatic situations. Rumania's attitude apparently is causing the central powers great uneasiness, while Greece's refusal to assist by the entente powers, is of equal concern to those powers.

Rumania is said to be only awaiting the presence in the Balkans of a permanent entente military force before dispatching an ultimatum to Austria, and German military circles, according to dispatches reaching London, express considerable dissatisfaction with the conditions in the Balkans, predicting both military and diplomatic difficulties ahead despite the brilliant Serbian campaign of Field Marshal Von Mackensen.

Moreover, it is reported that Austria is opposed to the idea and possibility of Bulgarian domination of Balkan states, and it is suggested that the German emperor is responsible for the connection.

German Emperor's recent visit to Vienna.

Greece Still Obstinate.

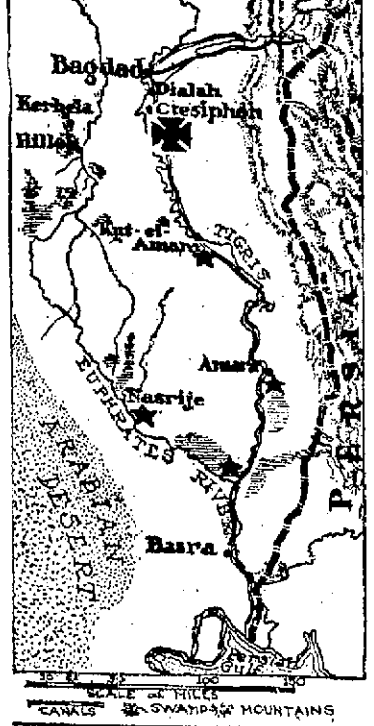

Greece steadfastly refuses to concede entente demands for unrestricted access to the Greek port of Saloniki as a base, and furthermore declines to remove her army from Macedonia.

Except for capture of Prizrend by Hungarians there has been no marked change in the military situation. The fate of Monastir, reported to have fallen before the Bulgars, remains obscure notwithstanding definite reports from central consuls in the city had arranged to withdraw the Serbians. But later dispatches stated that telegraphic communication with the city was still maintained, indicating it had not yet been entirely evacuated.

The eastern front has been comparatively quiet. The Russians are reported as being greatly strengthened along the Riga line, in view of the fact that they can shatter the German defenses whenever a forward movement is decided upon.

Vienna reports the Italians seem determined to capture Gorizia with least possible loss of time, but progress against defenses of the town is exceedingly slow.

BRITISH VICTORY BRINGS ARMY NEAR GATES OF BAGDAD

Cross indicates position of British army south of Bagdad; stars show where battles were fought.

According to a statement of the London war office, the British forces in Mesopotamia are within thirty miles of Bagdad. On the map the stars mark the successive points of engagement between the advancing British and the Turks as the latter fell back on Bagdad. The British troops are composed largely of Indian, Australian and New Zealand contingents. After landing at the mouth of the Euphrates and taking Basra, they made this town their base of operations.

PUNCH IS MISSING IN THE SPEECHES

Senator La Follette Continues His Speaking Tour of the State—Omitted Figures Last Evening.

By R. B. Pixley.

Dodgeville, Wis., Dec. 1.—The second day of the latest La Follette campaign found the members of the senator's party in a pessimistic as they were, if not believing the advance press no longer.

Senator La Follette himself said to a close adviser in Madison Tuesday morning that he did not remember the speech did not have the desired effect. In answer to a query as to the success of his meeting, he said he made a "risky" speech, "the reply," "it was a good speech."

"Well, I couldn't get into it," replied the senator, in a tone of disgust.

"The figures I couldn't remember them. And it is a rotten speech."

I will explain, if the senator is curious, that this conversation took place in a barber shop, and the barber shop does not put towels over one's ears. Perhaps this isn't political ethics, repeating what one hears, but the senator isn't long on ethics in his Richmond Center speech. Witness his misquoting of a misquoting of Governor Waukeles speech. He made the governor say: "Higher education is a fine thing and should appeal to the rich."

He stopped there. As a matter of fact, in the speech which the senator had on the table in front of him, the governor said the education of the young men and women of the world was a fine thing, and that rich men had endowed institutions for this purpose. He said further that Wisconsin wanted to give her boys and girls an education, and until the people could do this without hardship he was not in favor of taxing Wisconsin citizens to educate non-residents, including some of them.

It would take much space to call attention to all mis-statements in this speech. They appeared to be deliberate, and we are told the senator worked on the reduction of the governor's speech. The senator's speech was a fine thing, and that rich men had endowed institutions for this purpose. He said further that Wisconsin wanted to give her boys and girls an education, and until the people could do this without hardship he was not in favor of taxing Wisconsin citizens to educate non-residents, including some of them.

FAIL TO DETERMINE CAUSE OF DISASTER AT DUPONT FACTORY

Powder Mill Explosion at Wilmington in Which Thirty-one Were Killed, Obliterated All Evidence.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 1.—Although a searching investigation is being made of the disaster started by explosion of the Dupont Powder company immediately after the explosion which caused the death of thirty-one men and serious injury of six others in the company's upper Hagley yards yesterday, nothing of a tangible nature had been discovered up to an hour today. Every employee who was near the building that was destroyed was given a thorough examination but without throwing any light on the mystery. Not one of the twenty-seven men who were in the Hagley yards house escaped, and there is now only a big hole in the ground where the building stood.

Another Explosion Today.

There was a small explosion of smokeless powder early today at the Dupont powder plant at Carney's Point, N. J., across the Delaware river from this city. No one was hurt, and property damage was slight, company officials said.

The flash of the explosion was seen by persons of this city as it occurred just at dawn, and the sound was heard, but most people knew nothing about it until several hours later.

A DECISION REACHED ON DEBATE RULE

DEMOCRATS FAIL TO COME TO AGREEMENT ON CLOSURE OF DEBATE.

ANXIOUS FOR HARMONY

Final Determination of Matter is Deferred for a Day in Interests of Party—Steering Committee Named.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Dec. 1.—Democrats of the senate in caucus today failed to reach any agreement on a rule to provide for closure of debate postponing action until tomorrow. The special rules committee was not ready to make any definite recommendation but will endeavor to submit a proposal tomorrow. The caucus also deferred election of a president pro tempore. That will be taken up Friday.

Hope to Have Harmony.

Senator Kern, chairman of the conference, said the election was deferred by common consent with a view to assuring harmony in the conference. Several senators have opposed the re-election of Senator Clark of Arkansas and have sought to induce Senator Pomeroy of Ohio to be a candidate.

Senator Chilton of West Virginia was elected vice-chairman of the conference, and Senator Lewis of Illinois was re-elected as a party whip. On the steering committee, Senator Kern named Senators Martin, Owen, Chamberlain, Thomas, O'Gorman, Williams, James and Reed. Senators Luke Lee of Tennessee, Hoke Smith of Georgia, and Clark of Arkansas retired from the committee.

The new committee will make up a committee of assignments for the new senate. Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, it was learned, has proposed that the committee be enlarged so that Senator Underwood of Alabama, a former majority leader of the house, may be given a seat on the committee.

Senate Democrats wrestled with the problem of closure when they resumed their caucus today. At the same time the new committee was organized, and means committee continued their task of readjusting the committees to provide a place for the large republican majority.

Baron Shibusawa Looks to United States as Leading Nation in Six Power Alliance Plan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Dec. 1.—Baron Eichi Shibusawa, the Japanese financier who was here today for a short stay, elaborated upon his plans to maintain peace by establishing a six power alliance, comprising the United States, Great Britain, France, Russia, Italy and Japan. On his way from San Francisco to New York, the baron said he had with him many leading Americans on methods of securing lasting peace. One of the men with whom he discussed the proposed six power plan, was Charles W. Elliott, president emeritus of Harvard university.

"I will lay this plan before our leading business and thinking men," he said, "and will do all in my power to make this idea take hold of public opinion so that when peace comes, Japan may be in a position to ask the United States to enter this six power alliance and such other nations to become associated. I am of the opinion that when the time comes for peace, America's influence and weight will be such that that will not be disturbed for many years to come and a peace that will be for justice and honor."

In order to bring about this most desirable result, we must look principally to the people of this great republic and I am gratified to know this matter is engaging serious consideration among the leaders of thought and action in this country. Japan, I am convinced, will be ready to do its part."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Dec. 1.—One hundred women aided by 5,000 Boy Scouts, are canvassing the city today for collection of signatures to a petition addressed to congressmen, asking them to support President Wilson's plan for national preparedness. They hope to obtain 25,000 signatures. The campaign is conducted by a committee of social relief society who have designated this as "Defense Day." Already 400 voters have applied to the society for blank and signed them without solicitation. Ten of the largest corporations of the city are canvassing their own employees.

The petition will be sent to Washington in time to reach members of congress before its opening next Wednesday.

Mrs. William Alexander, president of the society, says the movement is a test of strength to show that the people who are crying out against preparedness are a minority, she declared.

First reports that the train had been "help up" were disseminated by the reports to the railroad headquarters here.

The robbery is supposed to have occurred while the train was near Oconomowoc, Wis., where it was due to stop at 8:32 a. m. The thief is said to have left the train here and boarded an interurban car for Milwaukee, and the arrest of a suspect in that city was said by railroad officials here to have cleared up the crime.

The train arrived here at 9:30 a. m. and the robbery had caused so much comment among the passengers and the men, that no report was made of the occurrence to local officials until press dispatches from Waukeles, Wis., gave a report of a "hold-up."

The police of Waukeles county were reported as rounding up suspects and having several men in custody.

Early reports of a robbery reached here but did not give names of the victims, nor the amounts they lost.

NAME THREE ON CABINET IN AUSTRIA

NEW MINISTERS APPOINTED TO SUCCEED THOSE WHO RESIGNED, EMPEROR AFFIRMS.

Most Important and Thoroughgoing Cabinet Changes in Any of War Countries Claimed to Have Been Effected.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Amsterdam, via London, Dec. 1.—Reports that several members of the Austrian cabinet have resigned are confirmed by an advertisement from the Wiener Zeitung of Vienna. The emperor has accepted the resignation of Dr. Karl Heindol Udrnski, minister of interior, Dr. Rudolph Schuster von Bonnot, minister of commerce, and Baron Engle von Mainfeld, minister of finance.

Acceptance of these resignations is qualified with the statement that the services of the retiring ministers are to be available if required. Dr. Heindol and Baron Engle have been appointed members of the upper house, while the rank of Freiherr has been conferred on Dr. Schuster. Prince Hohenlohe Schillingfurst, president of the supreme court of accounts, has been appointed minister of interior. Ritter von Lehl, governor of postal savings banks, minister of finance, and Herr von Stitzmiller, director of the Credit Anstalt, minister of commerce.

The first report of the resignation of the Austrian cabinet ministers came almost simultaneously with the visit to Vienna of Emperor William on Monday.

No authentic information has been received concerning the state of affairs politically which brought about the retirement of the ministers, but their withdrawal from office, and the interview with Emperor Francis Joseph have given free rein to speculation concerning Austria's relations with the world of peace negotiations.

It has been represented that Emperor William went to Vienna on account of this situation although other reports state that he was there to discuss the desired Austria to make concessions to Rumania for the purpose of keeping her out of the war. These reports have come from the most part from an anonymous source in Austria, and have been so contradictory that they have not been credited generally.

This is the most important change which has been made in any of the cabinets of the central powers during the war.

PROBE CONFESSION OF ALLEGED COUNCIL

Suspect Held at Cleveland Said to Have Admitted Knowledge of Munition Plant Plots.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cleveland, Dec. 1.—Federal and county officers today were investigating a "confession" which they say was made to them in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Silas Locher late yesterday by Dr. E. L. Ritter, in which Ritter is claimed to have told of having knowledge of a plot to manufacture munition plants in the United States.

Ritter was arrested on charge of passing a worthless check for $50 on Miss Grace Durely. He is being held at $5,000 bail, and is being held in the city jail.

Among the items in Ritter's alleged confession was the claim his real name is Emerich W. Ritter von Retzlag, son of a former Austrian count and former officer in both Austrian and German navies. Today, however, Ritter denied to newspaper men that he is a son of Ritter.

Ritter claims he is the inventor of "liquid fire," officers say, and that he has been experimenting extensively with it in the local gas field.

WORK OF REMOVING POLES ON BUSINESS STREETS HAS BEGUN

Companies Start to Comply With Anti-Pole Ordinance Passed By the City Commission.

Companies and corporations affected by the city ordinance requiring the removal of all poles and light poles within the prescribed zone of the business district and the prohibiting of the erection of poles, have started active work to conform with the ordinance within the time limit, May first, next year.

The Janesville Electric company has had a force of men engaged for some time past taking down wires from their poles on Milwaukee street and preparing the service so that overhead wires may be dispensed with. The wires are being placed underground. The great progress has been made with the work during the last week. Some of the poles will be needed for wires which supply current for the present lighting system, until the complete changes are made for the conduit service. However, P. H. Korst, president of the company, stated this morning that all the poles within the zone would be down before the time limit of the anti-pole ordinance.

Workers for the Wisconsin Telephone company have started making tests and installing wires for the placing underground of all their wires both local and toll, from the exchange on West Milwaukee street to the Corn Exchange. The company has conducted already for their wires up to this point, and before this month it over the company aims to have all their poles down as far as Franklin street. The Western Union company has completed its trench on North Franklin street for the laying of their cables underground, and manholes are being placed for the service of wires. Their poles will come down within the near future. The Postal company has a cable stretched across the intersection of Main and Milwaukee street, and will provide means of suspending the wires or laying them underground.

The Janesville Traction company has not yet fully decided what means to take in carrying their trolley wires. Two systems are being considered by the company. Some time ago the directors of the Commercial club, at a meeting, announced that an attempt would be made to obtain the consent of all the property owners on the main streets to allow the traction company to attach their wires to the buildings, thus eliminating all poles. If this cannot be done, the company will install a system of small steel ornamental poles to hold the wires. It is hoped by the majority of the citizens that the first method will be successful, as the effect of having even steel ornamental poles will not enhance the effect of the new lighting system. It was the original plan of the city to attach their wires to the buildings, but the city commission is seeking satisfactory designs for light standards and will prepare specifications for the receiving of bids for the entire amount desired for the "white way."

DECLARE PUBLICITY

HEALTH SAFEGUARD

State Board of Control Denounces Practice of Suppressing News of Disease Epidemics.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 1.—Rumors that facts about the prevalence of smallpox have been systematically suppressed by local newspapers "for the good of the town" led the state board of health today to sound a warning. Such complaints usually emanate from smaller communities. It is charged that in a small city where over one hundred cases were reported, little or no mention of the epidemic was made in the weekly press.

"This is an example," says the state board, "of how local interests will keep disease outbreaks secret for fear publicity might hurt business. As a matter of fact, those policies, if pursued, will inevitably ruin business. The vaccination of all teachers and pupils in the schools will probably mean the end of the epidemic. Publicity is one of the most essential things in public health work. The public has a right to know of the presence of disease in a town, and the individual who conceals it should face the righteous condemnation of his fellow citizens."

In some localities," continued the board, "there appears a misunderstanding as to the handling of the minor infectious diseases, such as measles, whooping cough and chicken-pox. The law requires that children suffering from these shall not be allowed to attend school. Neither can a well child coming from a home where such diseases exist remain in school. Moreover, the law says that such homes shall be quarantined for disease. This does not imply quarantine but is merely to notify the public of the presence of the disease in the home. Children, however, who have measles, whooping cough, etc., must remain on the premises and cannot mingle in any way with the general public."

J. M. Smith, who for the past forty years has been in the employ of the Northwestern road as engineer, has retired and is now on the pension list. J. M. Lee has taken his place.

Tonight the Northwestern Professionals will bowl a matched game with the Scrubs of the South Janesville shops at Miller's alleys. The lineup for the Professionals will be: Lindley, H. D. Wade, Ryan and Fraunfellow. The Scrubs will have W. H. Wade, Stocks, Horn, Lawson and Busch. Professionals expect an easy victory.

J. B. Coffin is laying off and J. Van Antwerp is relieving him.

A. Leider is laying off and Brookhaus is taking his place.

Frank Dooley is off from work on account of sickness.

Safety Movement.

Conductors on the Chicago and Northwestern have new duties imposed upon them under orders recently issued and heretofore they will act as "first aid" surgeons in case of accident. Each conductor is supplied with a first aid kit containing bandages, morphine, etc., and the kit must be turned in and replaced with a new one each time it is used. Booklets containing detailed instructions for first aid have been issued to the conductors and they are being given examinations on the contents of the book. It is the belief of the officials of the Northwestern—which is the pioneer of the safety first movement—that the first aid kits and operations of the conductors will eventually result in the saving of many lives, in that people who are injured in wrecks or by being struck by trains can be given sufficient aid to prevent death before the injured ones can be taken to a hospital.

WOMAN IS SENTENCED ON CHARGE OF INTOXICATION; MAN IN CASE, DISCHARGED

After a very short trial, Judge H. L. Maxfield this morning found Mrs. Edward Erickson guilty of the charge of being drunk and assessed a sentence of ten days flat and a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs or thirty days in jail. Ivan Selvick, who was arrested with Mrs. Erickson by Patrolman Harry Smith, was dismissed after examination on the same charge.

This is the second time that this couple has been before the court, the first time being for a statutory offense. Last September at the Intergovernmental station Patrolman Smith took them into custody for disorderly conduct. When arraigned in court, both pleaded not guilty and asked for a trial. The officer testified for the state and declared that the breath of Mrs. Erickson "smelled like a brewery."

When Selvick went to the stand and took the oath, he stated with a broken Norwegian accent "that he hoped to die right on the chair if he had taken a drop all day yesterday." The court did not wish him to pass to the world beyond "right on the chair," so discharged him.

Mrs. Erickson was committed to the county jail. She has children and the court announced that "they would be better off at the state school at Sparta than under her charge."

TWO MONTHLY REPORTS RECEIVED BY THE CITY

The report for November from the Board of Education showed an expenditure of $7,107.51.

Halves—Tibbott, Princeton, and King, Harvard.

Picking a high-class All-American team does not seem a difficult task this year. For each position one man stands out conspicuously—a man who has done brilliant work all season.

In my selection I am choosing only men who play where the three-year rule is followed. It does not seem to me to be fair to include men who have had a chance to play in their freshman year.

My team would be made up as follows:

CENTER—Cool of Cornell. He is a wonderfully heady player, exceptionally fine on defensive work and in diagnosing plays. He has just finished his third year, stands about six feet, and weighs 165.

LEFT GUARD—Schlacter, of Syracuse. Height, six feet; weight, about 240. Very fast and aggressive on offense and defense. Many of Wilkinson's gains this season were due to Schlacter's opening up the opposing lines.

RIGHT GUARD—Spears, of Dartmouth.

REPORT THAT BYERS, BADGER HALFBACK, IS VICTIM OF CUPID

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Dec. 1.—Is Dow Byers, neely Badger halfback, the victim of matrimony? Through a report received here today, an announcement was made that Byers was married on last Wednesday in Des Moines, Iowa.

When asked about the matter Byers was reticent regarding the alleged ceremony, refusing to deny the report of Mr. Rumor.

If Byers is married, it will probably mean his football career is ended. He states he will be back in uniform next fall, at the same time refusing to discuss the circulating reports. The rule is that he will be discarded as a member of the 1916 squad if the report is found to be the truth.

Some day you'll hit on a Sensible cigarette

And as soon as you smoke it, you'll at once know that it's sensible:

(1) It will please your taste. That goes without saying, otherwise it would not be sensible for you.

(2) It will be comfortable to your throat and tongue—not hot or bity as some cigarettes are.

(3) And it will not leave you feeling "over-smoked" even after a long-smoking day.

We would like to have you match Fatima against each one of those three points for a sensible cigarette. Then try any other cigarette made on those same points.

So many other men have found Fatimas the most sensible cigarette for them that Fatimas now outsell every other cigarette costing over 5c.

Doesn't it seem reasonable that you will like Fatimas best too?

CASTS THE GAUNTLET.

Senator La Follette has cast his gauntlet into the political ring of Wisconsin politics by his abusive and unfriendly address at Richland Center, Monday night, against the present state administration. Of course the administration expected the senator to approve of the Philipp administration. He could not after having come all the way from Washington, neglect his duties there to campaign for a renegade republican candidate for governor who helped turn the state over to the demagogue in 1912. However, in justice to the present administration he should have stated that they were left a heritage of some millions of appropriations, that the last administration had neglected to collect certain taxes they should have for just such a political argument and that the senate, anti-conservative, defeated every move of Governor Philipp to rescind appropriations and cut down state expenses. This sort of a statement from a man who twists and turns all statements to suit his own political end. However, the La Follette speech Monday lacked the pep and snap and the actual punch that his former orations have held. It was like crying for a lost cause to take his own labors before the people of the state and not explain his vote on the tariff which admittedly is democratic to the state and has done untold injury to the industry of this country despite the war orders. He did not have anything to say about the Stephenson matters whereby he was beneficiary of thousands upon thousands of dollars to promote his campaigns. He did not dwell upon the only piece of legislation that bears his name since he went down to Washington as United States senator, the Seamen's bill, which is driving the American flag from the high seas at a time when it could gain a prominent place. No, he preferred to refer to his own efforts, his own disappointments and pile abuse upon the leader of the state conservative movement, Emmanuel L. Philipp, and his efforts in behalf of a business administration of state affairs.

Disconsolant all have had his fill of the La Follette factory and it is to be hoped that all who hear his addresses will count the costs (dollars and cents) his experiments have cost them personally in the shape of excessive taxation in one way or another.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS.

It has been said that "God must have a sense of humor, or he never would have made money." One might similarly argue that the Lord must smile as he watches the incongruous eccentricities tolerated by the American people.

Arrangements are now being made for next summer's national political conventions. The location will probably be decided on the basis of the most favorable offers made by hotels and others for accommodation of delegates. The matter of getting a really favorable meeting place for a historic deliberative body will no doubt be disregarded this year as in the past.

These quadrennial gatherings are the most important business and political assemblages in the country. On the wisdom there displayed the prosperity and welfare of the United States depend. They should be conducted so as to secure quiet deliberation and interchange of thoughts.

The conventions ought to be held in a room sufficient only for the delegates and alternates, with liberal room for newspaper reporters. A great meeting of business, statecraft, and national policy should not be turned into a beer garden. But the custom is firmly imbedded in our political habits, and can't be overturned. The real deliberations take place in hotel lobbies. The floor debate is stage play. But there are crisis moments when the voice of the leaders should be heard in quiet and seclusion by every delegate.

IN DAYS OF YORE.

In days of yore this was the period of the year when the family sat around the open fire on winter evenings. Friends came in and visited. Huge platters of doughnuts were on the sideboard. The cellar always supplied its pitchers of cider and deliter and walnuts were always handy. Perhaps there was a popper handy for corn. The friends visited and while the men asked the latest news and the children romped and played, or read. There were no bridge games, not even five hundred, no elaborate luncheons, late suppers with the accompanying results of a sleepless night and a heavy, dull head the next day. But this was in days of yore. In the period of time before the American people became really civilized, yet somehow they bred up a line of descendants that have accomplished things and many look back with sighs at the days of yesterday.

DISHONEST ADVERTISING.

The Federal Trade Commission has taken up the matter of dishonest advertising on representation of the Associated Advertising Clubs. President E. S. Houston of the clubs argued before the commission a few days ago, that such advertising is unfair competition, and hence comes under the commission's jurisdiction.

Merchants used to argue that the public discounted their statements and they had to paint the thing in high colors to attract attention. This style of advertising is getting obsolete.

Modern advertising authorities urge plain statements of fact and figures, with the effort to give an impression of frank sincerity.

Wild cat mining stocks and business enterprises, impossible cures for disease, there is still a lot of that sort of things that hurls the whole advertising business. Local journals depending on their home constituencies are too close to the public and would be affected too quickly by the losses of people deluded by these deceptions. It would be a boon to the legitimate newspaper business if all these folks could be cleaned out.

If it becomes impossible to buy any more blue overalls owing to the scarcity of dyes, it will constitute one more reason why a man's wife should dig out the ashes, no scarcity of apron material being reported.

It seems strange that some people will keep on speaking of the "useless army posts" when the money distributed through them helps the congressmen from those districts to get re-elected.

President Wilson is said to do some good work writing out his own messages on the typewriter, and he probably does not stop and run to the window when the hurdy gurdies play, either.

It looks as if congress might this winter learn about some of the defects of our army and navy, concerning which the governments of Europe were fully informed years ago.

In case an invading army should land on our shores, it would not be sufficient defense to have the school children come out and sing "Kind words will never die."

The man who first started the idea of selling 1916 automobile models in 1915 is perhaps the same one who first issued Christmas magazines at Thanksgiving time.

It sometimes cost $30 per to see a big football game, but the competitors in the literary contests have to ask their friends to come and make up an audience.

If a newspaper agrees with certain people, it is considered an open forum, independent, and unbiased; if it disagrees with these people it is bought up.

It is not customary for people to call doctors for attacks of indigestion nowadays, but if the dog refuses his supper, the veterinary must be telephoned for quick.

The boarders are presumptuously hoping that the remnants of the Thanksgiving turkey will be disposed of before Christmas dinner.

Congress can not expect the country will pay much attention to its debates until it has read all about Mrs. Galt's trousseau.

The ability displayed by the allied powers in finding things out after they happen is something positively uncanny.

SNAP SHOTS

A current writer refers to them as "corduroy trousers." There is no such thing. Nether garments made of corduroy are "pants."

A girl not only buys a trousseau just before she gets married, but she also has her teeth fixed at pa's expense.

A woman's idea of a perfect husband is one who provides well for her folks.

The men who can be induced to buy gold bricks are comparatively few in number. But a smart salesman can sell a dandruff cure to any customer.

Make up your mind to one thing. If a privilege is worth anything to you some one will be around to collect for it.

"I notice," said Eph Wiley yesterday, "that there are 500,000 homeless cats in Chicago. There are more than that so far as I am concerned."

Every agent who sells goods on the installment plan has a convincing argument.

Tank Beverly says he has noticed that the woman for whom a man hypothecates his reputation and his self-respect seldom is as good-looking as his wife.

The men do not object to the elimination of the word "obey" from the marriage service. The phraseology of the marriage service is of no assistance to a man in his attempt to "boss" a woman.

If you are a man you probably will be refused bail. But if you are a woman your bond will be fixed at $200 and eighteen or twenty men will clamor for the privilege of signing it.

A Distinction.

"That man? I wouldn't admit him into our circle." "And why wouldn't you admit him into your circle?" "He belongs to a ring."

ROY K. MOULTON

Do You Know These Men? I know a man who's always got a quick and certain cure. For every ill or ailment that a mortal can endure. He always wants to try it out. Whenever his friends are sick. But when he's feeling punk himself. He calls a doctor quick.

I know a man who knows just how to fix your touring car. He stands upon the curb and tells you what a champion you are. But when his lawnmower starts to squeak. He knows just where to drop the oil to make it run again. And sends it to the shop.

Whenever I encounter one who blows and blows and blows, I have my opinion on that. How much he really knows. The conversation gazabo. Has got the head of wood. This quiet party is the one who's certain to make good.

The Telephoning Stenog. We are in favor of putting the lid on the telephoning stenog. Of course it isn't her fault at all. She works for some sink who hasn't got time to call you on the phone and he has her do it.

The phone bell rings and wife rushes to the phone. Nobody can beat wife to the phone. Ever notice that? Doesn't matter whose wife it is.

"Hello," says wife. "Hello," says strange woman over the phone. "Is Mr. Dinkus at home?" "No snaps wife." "He isn't. Who is speaking please?"

"Never mind, I'll call again." Husband gets home expecting a sweet smile from helpmeet and he gets a look that sours the milk away out in the refrigerator.

"What's wrong, dearie?" he asks, innocently. "As if you didn't know." "Well, I don't."

"Who was that strange woman who called you up on the phone a few minutes ago?" Husband blushes through force of habit, but manages to stammer that he hasn't the slightest idea.

"Of course not," replies helpmeet sarcastically. "You men never have." Might have been somebody's stenographer, says husband, who is suddenly inspired.

"What does somebody's stenographer want of you on the phone?" "Probably somebody wanted to invite me somewhere and had his stenographer call up."

"That's the poorest story you have sprung in eighteen years of wedded bliss."

"Of course it is the truth all the time, but husband is not sure. One never can be sure about those things. Taint possible."

"Guess Jenkins wanted me to come over and play bridge and didn't have time to call me up and had his girl put in the call, up and husband, sparring for wind and trying to appear unconcerned and extremely jovial.

"Why didn't she say so, then?" "How should I know?"

"That wasn't any stenographer, Heinrich, and well you know it." If husband is wise he hikes over to the drug store at this moment and telephones to Jenkins and frames it up, if he is a noodle, he doesn't.

Anyhow, it is a mighty risky custom. Every man should do his own telephoning.

It is the hardest thing to explain since the nebular hypothesis was discovered.

A man can never convince his wife. And in a good many cases, he isn't exactly sure about it himself.

Bow Wow! Conundrum: If one cigar will make a man ill, will two make a Manilla? By Prof. Simp.

Adolph Beerhandle rushed into Magistrate O'Who's office and trembling like a basket of aspen leaves.

"I want to sign the pledge!" he panted fearfully. "I said the next time I saw things I would sign the pledge, and now I want to sign."

Went into the animal store around the corner to buy a dog, and all I could see in the dog cages was babies, live human babies. In the cage marked, 'Newfound' I saw two colored babies, and instead of a water spaniel in the water spaniel cage I saw a six months' old baby chewing on a dog biscuit. The pledge, quick!"

"Quick, the pledge!" cried the magistrate. "Pledge, the quick!" cried the magistrate's clerk, and produced an empty pledge form which was soon filled with Adolph Beerhandle's name and resolution.

After the reformed man had departed Magistrate O'Who soliloquized, "If I didn't need the dollar fee, I'd have told him that the animal store man makes extra money on the side by checking babies during the matinee."

Types The Atypical Mate

By Sara Moore.

He has two titles. Some still call him "the typical newspaper man." In the big metropolitan offices, overrun with fresh faced cubs from schools of journalism, he is professionally referred to as "the old-fashioned" newspaper man. Both in the tribe and out of it he attracts and holds men by the brilliancy of his cynicism, the range of his wit, information, and experience. You can find samples of him in any popular magazine or, if it is pay night, in almost any bar in the vicinity of Park Row. He is one of board than to go to housekeeping. They took furnished rooms near the office and Florence liked to meet him for lunch at midnight, and sometimes wait for him after work, so they might walk home together in the early dawn.

Naturally, she joined the little gatherings of night workers. She did not drink at that time, but the men grew to like her and she was a silent, interested little spectator at many a poker game. She was a "likable sort of kid," a "good fellow" and "square the reasons why most newspapers never give pay checks on Saturday. With a forty-eight hour start on a jag he could never be brought down to earth for a Monday morning assignment till only ten or twelve hours between attaining a real wage and duty his hilarity seldom becomes uncontrollable.

But in this story the type is mentioned only to explain the heroine, who is to be pointed out as a by-product of newspaper life.

"Why," wailed the Society Editor recently, "doesn't someone write the story of this popular hero's wife?"

A sob sister promptly replied that it was because no one could do the typical newspaper man's wife justice. Only the Recording Angel could appreciate her special virtues. The typical wife—who is not the heroine—is a sort of saint keyed to the strain of running a household on an uncertain and inadequate salary. She has to adapt her housekeeping to the demands of a temperamental, nervous husband and usually bears and raises her children with little attention from their father. And in addition she must suffer as only a good woman can suffer, when the man she loves continually strays from the paths of sobriety.

This type of man—and he is sometimes an artist or a novelist or an actor—not always a newspaper product of the newspaper grind is the last one on earth to appreciate the kind of domestic support. He always chooses it, because he is too worldly wise to marry any but the loyal, homekeeping woman. Then when he cannot trap her to appreciate what he believes is a rarified atmosphere of good fellowship, he spends the rest of his life telling the bartenders that marriage is a failure.

If the typical wife's side of the story ever does get itself written, the typical newspaper man is going to rise up in wrath and unbelief. Never having realized how the woman's side of their partnership he would call any one who presented it a nature faker.

So-to-avoid all difficulties—this is to be the story of the atypical wife of what the outside world profession call the typical newspaper man.

Florence had just enough experience in a newspaper office to understand the habits and temperament of this species when she fell in love with one of them and gave up her position of assistant society editor, an unexciting life consisting of putting in punctuations and extruding adjectives from accounts of the social activities of our best people. Bob worked on a morning paper and his unholy office hours made it better for them to with Bobby." Encouraged by her adaptability they tried to include some of their own wives in the mild gaieties. But always the typical women had to force their social smiles. Their good-fellowship had a hollow ring. It was obvious that they were trying to keep what their mothers would say if they could see their mothers now.

Bobby went to New York, after a time, and the atypical wife made a real hit with the new crowd. Other atypical wives usually went to extremes of good fellowship when in the divorce courts. But Florence was different; she drank with great moderation and she adored Bobby so wholeheartedly that her loyalty was obvious. The metropolitan pace began to tell on her fun-loving husband, but she mothered him through his downfalls. When it could be done without nagging, she held him to the water wagon for long and pleasant trips.

Four years after her marriage she was thin and still pretty with a careful, conscientious kind of prettiness. At the end of five years, while resting in a sanatorium, she had this to say of her system, which may or may not be of interest to typical wives of any professional men.

"Of course I have learned things I never wanted to know and I suppose you would call me cynical. I don't have many women friends—and I wouldn't trust the average man as far as I could throw him. I have had to know so much of life in the raw that, if I let myself be serious, I might grow bitter. But I have accomplished one thing I set out to do—I have kept my man."

"And are you happy?" asked her sister.

"Well, we have a great many good times," said the wise little wife. "And I land in the hospital at least once a year. Still, Bobby is worth the effort. When we are so much together, we can't enjoy things without me. And he never gets a chance to tell his troubles to a gang."

"And it has paid—?"

"Well, I have had to make sacrifices," said the young woman. "I never have had a home and children; I never expect to have them. Sometimes we think it would be nice

DR. JENKIN LLOYD JONES SHY PROOF HE IS A CITIZEN

Former Janesville Pastor Has Trouble Trying to Secure Passport to Travel Abroad.

Jenkins Lloyd Jones of All Souls' church and head resident of Lincoln center, Chicago, and formerly of Janesville, yesterday applied to federal officials for a passport to go to Europe and was unable to prove his American citizenship.

Dr. Jones and Mrs. Edith Lloyd Jones, his wife, are planning to join Henry Ford's peace delegation to Europe. The liner Oscar II, Ford's peace ship, is scheduled to sail from New York on Saturday. If Dr. Jones gets a passport, the state department at Washington will have to waive certain provisions of the passport regulations.

Dr. Jones and his wife spent an anxious hour in the office of the clerk of the United States district court. They applied to Chief Deputy Clerk John H. R. Jamar, who proceeded to put the applicant questions required by law to the applicant.

Born in Wales.
Dr. Jones said he was born in Wales and came to the United States with his parents when he was 1 year old. There are three forms of passport blanks.

"I am a citizen by act of congress," Dr. Jones said.

"Well, in that case you will have to produce your father's certificate of naturalization," said Clerk Jamar.

"That's impossible," said the clergyman. "I have reason to believe my father was naturalized soon after he arrived in Wisconsin from Wales in 1844, but in the course of that many years his certificate has been lost."

Mr. Jamar looked over the three forms of blanks and decided none of them fitted in the case of Dr. Jones. One is for native born citizens, one for naturalized, and the third is for those naturalized through naturalization of husband or parent.

Morris & Co.'s Agent Aids.
Mrs. Edward Morris, a patron of Lincoln center, sent Edward S. La Bart, her agent for Morris & Co., to help Dr. Jones out of his difficulty. Mr. La Bart suggested that one of the judges be requested to give advice in the matter.

Judge Carpenter was appealed to and he came into the clerk's office and surveyed the situation. At his suggestion Clerk Jamar finally permitted Dr. Jones to fill out the form of application with one mailed in the evening to Washington.

"Anything I can do I am at your service," Judge Carpenter said.

The judge also wrote a special letter to Secretary of State Robert Lansing stating that he had known Dr. Jones to have been a voter in Chicago for many years and that he was a veteran of the great war and that he was a citizen of the United States.

In his application Dr. Jones stated he wanted to travel in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and England. He stated he was born in Wales, Nov. 14, 1844, and came to Jefferson county, Wisconsin, with his father, Richard Lloyd Jones, in 1844.

Served in Civil War Battery.
"I have also written my citizenship," Dr. Jones said. "I served in the Sixth Wisconsin battery in the civil war, and I have been a voter in Chicago thirty-five years. I am now summer postmaster at our town, Hillsum, summer camp, in Iowa county, Wisconsin, where we stay from June to September every year."

Dr. Jones also wrote a special certificate of naturalization has been lost. I have reason to believe he was naturalized under the territorial government of Wisconsin. It would be difficult to trace those records now."

"I say I served through the civil war. I am for peace now. I had a lurking suspicion that war was wrong at that time and since then I have become convinced of it. That's why we are taking this peace trip."

Others who applied for passports to the peace delegation were Carl D. Thompson, official of the socialist party and former socialist city auditor of Milwaukee; Florence Holbrook, principal of the Forestville school, and Mrs. A. A. Holbrook and wife and three children of Winnetka.

DRASTIC ACTION ON PART OF SHEAFOR WRECKS SCHOOL FIVE

Charge of Professionalism is Made on a Number of High School Basketball Players.

It is possible that some of the best aspirants for basketball honors at the high school play in any athletic community in the strict ruling of the Inter-Scholastic Athletic association is enforced as regards athletes taking part in exhibitions where an admission fee is charged unless under the auspices of the school or a Y. M. C. A. This startling statement was made yesterday after the school period by Principal T. Sheafor to a meeting of athletes called for the purpose of discussing basketball prospects.

Professor Sheafor is now making an investigation into the complaint that certain high school athletes played in a football game at the Park Association grounds on Thanksgiving day, and upon the result of his findings the fate of the basketball athletics evidently depends.

The ruling in the association, of which the Janesville high school is a member, is that no high school athlete who plays in any athletic contest of any kind where a paid admission is charged, except for the benefit of a high school, Y. M. C. A., or church, shall play on a high school athletic team.

This ruling, if Sheafor's decision is correct, may rob the high school of many of their star players. Three of the best players, Captain Richards, Weirick and Lee, have already been protested, and some of the other bright hopes of the team, Cronin, Mooney, Filter and McWay are also under protest. A very hard schedule ahead of the five, Coach Keck will have hard sliding with his bunch unless proof can be secured that will let these players back in good standing.

FARMERS SHOULD DEMAND LAWS FOR AID IN BUSINESS

Speaker Tells Farmers at Chicago Convention of Remedies to Increase Their Profits.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1.—Farmers of the United States are coming to the aid of their milk, Mr. Wheeler, secretary of the Massachusetts board of agriculture, told the national conference of marketing and farm credits in its third day's session today. Farmers are at the mercy of the big dealers, who pay farmers what they see fit, he said.

Best of distribution of milk is too high, he said, and the operation and better business methods, he maintained, these could be materially reduced. People of the United States, Wheeler said, should not be asked to drink more milk, as it is wholesome food, that is cheap even at the present price.

Only when the American farmer acquires the right of farm and bank legislation to foster and provide new economic machinery, will there be better marketing conditions and adequate credit facilities, according to David L. Thompson, director of the international institute of agriculture at Rome, said today. In Germany, he said, the government advocated marketing legislation, because the farmer was not able to handle his business aggressively. The result has been excellent economic conditions, of which Germany rightfully boasts, he claimed.

Legislation and state legislation, to provide the facilities, he said, would make it possible for tenant farmer and farm laborer to acquire farm land, was urged by John Lee Conner, dean of the college of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. The steps he would take to attain these ends are:

An act of congress providing for a complete scheme of farm and bank legislation, to foster and provide new economic machinery, will there be better marketing conditions and adequate credit facilities, according to David L. Thompson, director of the international institute of agriculture at Rome, said today. In Germany, he said, the government advocated marketing legislation, because the farmer was not able to handle his business aggressively. The result has been excellent economic conditions, of which Germany rightfully boasts, he claimed.

Legislation and state legislation, to provide the facilities, he said, would make it possible for tenant farmer and farm laborer to acquire farm land, was urged by John Lee Conner, dean of the college of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. The steps he would take to attain these ends are:

Such state legislation as is a necessity to take over by some public service corporation, land not already developed—these lands to be developed, he said, and sold at advantage on long terms, to select farmers who do not own any land, but who are seeking to become permanent settlers, living upon and operating their own farms.

Team work by existing marketing agencies was urged as the solution of the marketing problem. P. Hampton, Washington, secretary of the National Marketing commission, said that the marketing commission, under his leadership, is working for more efficient transportation, at lower freight rates, and better merchandising were some of the things he suggested for reform.

The marketing commission, he said, are up against marketing the crops he said. These agencies, he claimed, have been "going it alone," to secure the ends that would better be secured through team work.

Fred W. Davis, commissioner of agriculture in Texas, told last how the state warehouse commission law permitted the farmer to hold his cotton for prices that suited him, raising necessary money on his warehouse receipts. State colonization was urged by Harris Wainwright, banker, and members of the United States Industrial Relations Commission, last night, Charles A. Lyman, president of the Wisconsin society of Equity, described the cooperative marketing plan in Wisconsin. The producer himself is responsible for losses in shipping, and standards in quality and packing should be enforced, R. W. Rockwood, industrial and agricultural agent for the M. & T. said.

SALTS IF BACKACHY AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating meat for a while if your Bladder Troubles You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

"Let Us Meet and Counsel Together"

THE VITAL PRINCIPAL IN SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

Given at the Echo Banquet, Baptist Church, on Monday Eve, Nov. 22.

We all know that the introduction of the best methods possible into the Sunday school has been the keynote of the work for the last few years. But at the Convention at Appleton, Wis., the keynote was the control of the school. It was not enough to have the best methods, but if you were not controlling their lives or stimulating them to live better lives, your work was a failure.

Dr. Saxe, whose book of methods in the Sunday school we all recognize as an authority, said: "There must be new life in people rather than new methods. We must have new life, new energy, new spirit, new information. Information is not the pouring of information from a full head into an empty one. But we must be conscious that we are teaching lives and not lessons. Or, Stevens of the adult Bible work said: "That a class, that is not out for service is not out."

Prof. Athearn brought out the same thought in a very striking illustration. He said that when he attended school, he copied his book, and as he went down the line he copied his own imperfect line above. Now they have the copy on a string which slips down the page so that the student has the copy before him as he writes each line. We must give the student such a vital knowledge of God that he will have the perfect copy before him every day.

Mrs. Siffr, who no one can hear speak without realizing that she has consecrated her life to bringing the Kingdom of God, gave the following startling announcement:

She said that from statistics which she had been gathering for the organized classes, all of the reports of which are not all in, that only twenty-seven per cent. of the girls are members of the church. And she made an earnest appeal that the girls should decide for Christ before they enter high school, as after that period there are so many agencies to draw them away from the church. The question is whether you are able to apply the lesson to the every day problems of the students.

WOMEN ON THE FARM.

Herbert W. Collingwood, Editor of Rural New Yorker, (celebration 100th anniversary of the birth of the woman) has this to say of the farm woman:

"I once heard an orator, making about what he called the 'God-given right to labor.' No one will be likely to deny the fact that this is usually printed in Italics. It is because she does her work promptly and without complaint that agriculture can pull out its chest and make a show of it. But when you look back to the foundation of it all, you strike the brave and patient worker by the kitchen stove. What would you think of it if the farmer were to put a line on his watch and used the poorest material he could find for the making of it? How long would his trade last? Yet the farm woman makes the backbone of the nation's business. Go and look at her working outfit, and see what sort of material is put into the making of it. It is James M. Pierce, publisher of Wisconsin Farmer, and other farm journals, champions the cause of the farmer's wife as follows:

CLUBS FOR THE RURAL WOMAN.

There are many curious facts brought out by the Census statistics taken by the Federal Government, and one of these is that the greatest percentage of insanity among women comes from those living in the rural districts. It is directly the result of what one would expect from country life and conditions until one considers it carefully. The pure air, the wholesome food and the regular hours would seem to conduce to a sane and healthful existence. But it is in the monotony of hard work and the drudgery of every day routine, with no ambition of a change and no inspiration toward something brighter or better in life that makes the danger in the farm homes. The men and boys of the family get out to public meetings, belong to neighborhood clubs, take the short cuts in the university, and have various ways of getting in touch with the progressive spirit of the day. But for the women of the farm with their family affairs and their regular work, very little has been done to lighten their loneliness or inspire them with the enthusiasm of new methods of living. This fact has caused great concern in the bureau of agriculture and considerable effort has been made by the U. S. government toward finding out the problems of the rural woman and trying to find a remedy for some of her needs.

Letters have been sent out during this last year, from the Bureau of Agriculture to farmers' wives all over the country, asking them what they have found to be the greatest needs of country women on the farms, and what they could suggest to remedy these undesirable conditions. Many interesting facts were brought out in the letters and no doubt the government experts will get busy with some ideas presented to them and have many plans to offer in different lines of work.

One letter tells how the women worked out their own problem without outside help. It says:

"A few women of this neighborhood conceived the idea of meeting afternoons at the house of one and then another. Each in turn reads aloud while the others work. This has lasted several years. The results are surprising. At first only one woman would read. Then they went on through hundreds of books. They are now read in their turn. They are fairly familiar with current literature. Their taste has improved to the point that they read the best books. This idea should be given publicity, and any one seeking to organize such a reading club should be warned not to commence with standard works."

but with books with exciting plots sufficient to hold the attention of people not trained to think long on any one subject and to whom the reading habit is irksome. Taste in literature will improve by practice, but an effort to start a high plane will probably result in failure.

Another significant need mentioned in these letters is for a higher quality of religious instruction. Churches, it is said, should be the centers of more helpful influence than is the case in many country places; deeper, stronger religious life is the great need. One of the greatest needs of farm women is inspiration. Social-center meetings at the rural schoolhouses. Four years ago but a society of any kind, I went to see several of my nearest neighbors and advised we have a Sunday school at our schoolhouse on Sunday afternoon. We have had the first Sunday of January, 1911. There were eleven present, three women and about five children. The literature was ordered. I took something like a year to get the neighbors aroused to the idea. Now this Sunday school has an enrollment of 70. Every farmer's wife, save possibly one, in reach comes to the school. We have had dinner on the ground many times, and are singing once a week, prayer meetings, and two of our neighboring communities are following suit. It is simply inspiration and enthusiasm that farm women need—the help study to call them together on Sunday.

So important did the U. S. Government consider this question of providing a mental outlet for the farm woman that it has made it a part of its work. It has sent out a booklet, "The Farm Woman," for a noted club woman of the States and asked that she come down to the zone and organize a women's club on the farm. This was done and it became very popular among all classes and conditions of people. So that now the "Women's Club of the United States" sends its delegates to the International Federation of Women's Clubs and offers some of the best workers in the line of the intellectual thought of today.

This subject has seemed so important that it has engaged the attention of various professions in the sociological field of work. Mrs. Edith Smith, formerly of Penn. College, spent several months in Wisconsin last year under the direction of the University of Wisconsin, studying the conditions among the farm women of the state. She gave a short address before the Summer Club of the University of Wisconsin on "The Rural Woman." She especially urged that city clubs make an effort to have rural members and give every effort to make it possible for the formation of women's clubs in the rural districts.

The different states have in many cases been aroused by this alarming fact of the increase of insanity among the rural women and have made some effort toward improving conditions among the dwellers on the farms. Wisconsin has its College of Agriculture, which is at present doing a good work in its efforts to work among the women of the state and do extension work in domestic science and kindred subjects. The rural extension work of the state. Miss Elizabeth Kelley is in charge of this work and can be reached by letter or by telephone. She is also in charge of the College of Agriculture, Madison. She will arrange a program of lectures and demonstrations for club meetings or neighborhood affairs when asked to do so. And such meetings, when thrown open to the general public, are no expense attached to them. The public is invited to come for their outline of work for this season: "We are planning to give the fundamentals in cooking and such a line of work that we may be able to build up in a year after year. For our demonstration this year we are taking up bread making with its modifications and the cooking and food value of eggs. These are subjects which have been giving new and delicious ways of preparing apples, making them appropriate for breakfast, dinner and supper. The sole expense of such a course is for the hall or suitable building and the material used, and it makes a very interesting addition to a farmers' institute for the winter. These experts are to be in Janesville in March and hold a two days' convention of Domestic Science in connection with the annual meeting of the Summer Club."

The simplest form of a club for the rural districts is in the nature of a "Neighborhood Reading Club." For this purpose one afternoon of the week should be set apart as reading day for the visiting or getting together of the neighboring women. Then take your little folks and your books and sit down and let one of the members read aloud while the others work. And as for reading material, why not begin with the government bulletins prepared by experts and sent free of expense on so many interesting topics?

Copies of these will be sent free to any address in the United States on application to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The following list has been made of subjects especially interesting to farmers' wives, which may be ordered by number:

CANNING CLUBS.

An effective way and one especially useful in country districts, to begin the work is to operate with the school teacher of the neighborhood to start a canning club for girls and a garden club for the boys. The teachers are always glad to favor a movement of this kind, but are usually too busy with their own duties to wish to undertake the entire responsibility of such an enterprise. But if the women of a neighborhood would get together and read up on the requirements of such a club and work with the school children, something interesting and helpful both to themselves and the children would result. It is not too hard to plan for another summer's work along this line. Send for material and information to the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin and begin right away to investigate what can be done by yourself and neighbors to start such clubs. Wonderful work has been done by these organizations all over the country, and there is no reason why they should not become popular and a great asset to country living right here in our own neighborhood.

WOMEN PLAN CLUBHOUSE.

Women of Kenosha are planning for the erection of a new clubhouse to be the center of women's work in the city, and plans for the incorporation of a company are now being worked out. The Women's Club of Kenosha has been active in this matter, and other organizations among the women of the city have pledged their aid. It is planned to erect the new building during the coming year.

This is an interesting project for the women of the state and encouraging to those who believe that the women's clubs are a great factor in the intellectual and social growth of a community. Kenosha is a little larger city than Janesville, having a population of something over 20,000 people. But the time must surely come when the women of this city will be able to plan something as a center of their activity.

Perhaps the problem may be worked out to include a Rest Room for the public and an adjoining club room with a kitchenette. Such a club room could be used as a social center for girls for evening meetings and for the use of regular women's clubs during the afternoon. All it needs to start an enterprise of this kind is for a suitable place to be provided for the purpose. Who has a suggestion to offer in this respect?

WESTMINSTER GUILD.

The Heavens In December.

Sirius, the brightest of all the stars, visible after sunset, is forty-eight times as powerful as our sun. The Astronomers' Star Thermometer.

Saturn, the ringed planet, a beautiful view in December. Rings not known to Ancient. Spectroscopic shows their composition. (By C. S. Brainin, of the Columbia Observatory Staff.)

The December sky brings to our notice several new objects of great interest. Saturn, the planet, is now high enough to be observed in the early evening hours. Among the stars, we have as welcome newcomers Sirius and Procyon, marking up to us the loss of Vega and Altair, which is soon to follow, though both are as yet visible low down on the western horizon. Jupiter, of course, still shines placidly and is readily identified by help of a map.

Sirius, the Dog-Star, may perhaps be termed the very monarch of stardom, for he is the brightest of all the stars, rivaling in brilliancy the large planets themselves. In scientific terms his magnitude is minus 1.2, and magnitudes are numbered so that the order of magnitude increases with decreasing brilliancy. Only eight light years separate us from Sirius, making him one of the nearest of the stars. The light year is an astronomical unit of distance equal to the number of miles that light, which travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, will pass over in a year. This determination of his distance shows us that one of our brightest stars are really in themselves of greater light-giving power than Sirius, which appears the most brilliant to us, but owing to their greater distance, seem fainter. And Sirius is forty-eight times as great an energy producer as our sun!

Astronomers attempt to tell the age of a star from its color. Assuming that the maximum of energy is produced at the color of the star's formation, say, through the collision of two bodies hurtling through space, the gradual cooling which must come through the loss of heat and light by radiation will with the passing ages change the nature or color of the star's light. The youngest and, therefore, hottest will gleam blue or rather bluish-white; those next in age yellowish and those that are old and comparatively cold will be of a reddish hue. Compare the color of heat-light from the temperature mounts, in this temperature, age scale our to the sky beyond. You should also note a dark line on the bright surface of the ring; this is the dividing line between the two outer rings, which at first appear to constitute only one. Within these rings there is still a third ring, called the cause ring, which is not visible in small telescopes at all because of its transparency and extreme attenuation.

The rings were first seen by Galileo in 1610, but he did not recognize them as such. He thought that they were appendages on either side of the planet and so could not explain or understand them. Huygens in 1656 recognized their nature, and the improvement of the telescope soon led to the confirmation of his observation by others and further to the discovery of the double nature of the ring. The third ring was not discovered until 1850. About the latter date the composition of the rings came in for discussion, and it was shown mathematically that solid rings could not exist there; neither could liquid, as the only possible condition was that the rings were composed of particles, large and small, revolving separately about their father Saturn. This was actually proven to be the case by the spectroscopic, which showed that the inside of the rings travelled at a greater speed than the outside, which precludes the possibility of a solid, rigid ring.

Dimensions of Saturn and His Orbit. The mean distance of Saturn from the Sun is 886 million miles, and his nearest approach to the earth is 774 million miles. He has been seen by him 29 1/2 years to complete one revolution about the sun. The angle between his orbit and the ecliptic or earth's orbit is only 2 1/2 degrees, so that Saturn is never seen far from the great ecliptic circle of the celestial sphere.

In the case of the earth and all other planets, the polar diameter is shorter than the equatorial. The mean diameter is about 72,500 miles, or more than nine times that of our earth. The volume is 768 times and the surface area is 81 times as great. The actual weight or mass is however only about a hundred times as great, so that the density is less—just enough to be as dense as the terrestrial matter.

In addition to the ring, Saturn is particularly rich in moons, having no less than nine of them revolving about him. Several of these are visible in small telescopes. Dark night as we know them, then, could hardly exist on Saturn, with both the rings and moons to reflect sunlight down to his surface.

SUGGESTS A RAILROAD ALL AROUND STATES AS DEFENSIVE SYSTEM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Williamsport, Pa., Dec. 1.—A defensive railroad built around the rim of the United States, about which thousands of coast defense guns could chase and ward off the combined navies of the world, is the skeleton of a preparedness plan just submitted to War Secretary Garrison by George L. Campbell of this city.

Campbell says this would be such adequate defense for New York, San Francisco, our other coast cities and coasts generally that we would not need much of a standing army nor much of a navy. He adds that the Belt-Line Defense System would be economic because freight and passenger traffic would pay for the road in peace time.

"The vulnerability of this country to attack lies in its unprotected Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts. A navy large enough to defend such a coastline involves expenditure sure to arouse antagonism in a people unused to considering sacrifices involved in protection against the menace of modern warfare."

"To protect these coasts by fortifications of the usual type is impossible. An intermediate course could be followed whereby we could hold the combined fleets of the world at bay without the expense of building a navy and with practically no expenditure for the usual permanent type of coast fortifications.

"I would suggest that a standard gauge double track, military railroad be built around the North American continent, that each standard gauge track be further equipped on the outside for special trucks for mounting mobile heavy defense guns."

In peace time such a road could earn its own maintenance. Standard engines, in war time, could move long trains of the wide gun trucks rapidly to any part of these coasts and stand machine guns and the like. Thus we could employ thousands of guns against an attacking fleet's hundreds. Coast cities like New York would be lifted from their present defencelessness."

NORTHERN CHEESEMAKERS ORGANIZE IN A BOARD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 1.—Cheese makers of Outagamie county met this afternoon at the Northwestern house to discuss the workings of the Appleton Dairy board. The board hopes to procure a membership of forty factories. Because of the small number of factories now represented, few buyers appear on the market, and consequently bidding is not as brisk as it would be if there were thirty-five or forty bidders.

STATE CROP REPORT SHOWS HEAVY LOSS RESULT OF FROSTS

Sixteen Per Cent of Corn Crop Ripened —Potatoes Hurt By Early Freeze.
—Weather Conditions.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 1.—A. W. Kalbus, statistician of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, has issued a report of the estimated crop conditions in Wisconsin on Nov. 1. This report is in the hands of the printer and will be sent out within a few days. The Department of Agriculture has greatly improved its crop reports. It has doubled the number of reporters in every township in the state. Reports are not only more thorough in dealing with crops, but they will contain, beginning with the next report, prices paid to farmers for their crops.

The report of crop conditions on Nov. 1 presented by Mr. Kalbus is as follows: "The reports of crop correspondents of this department indicate that the yield and quality of all crops, except corn and potatoes, is normal or above. Small grains were exceptionally good in quality and the yield above the average, the oat crop yielding in many cases as high as seventy-five bushels per acre."

Fractured Hit Corn Crop.
"Owing to the abnormally cool season from June to October, particularly during August and September, corn continued its vegetative growth without ripening normally in all sections of the state, until killed by frost. On August 20th frost stopped the growth of corn and killed the leaves throughout the northern section of the state and scattered areas of lowlands in other sections. A frost on September 21st killed the remainder of the corn. Our reports show that as a result of these conditions only 15.5 per cent of the corn ripened throughout the state. In some parts of the state silos were filled with the green corn after the first frost, resulting in silage of poor quality, and non-palatable silage in many cases the silage material is seeping through the bases of silos. In other sections the corn affected by the early frost was left standing until the middle of September, thus losing many leaves, and the silage made contained a small percentage of leaves. This silage seems to be keeping better than that put up earlier."

Seed Corn Situation.
"The condition mentioned above as affecting corn brought about during the months of September and October prospects of a serious shortage of seed corn for the coming year, and the possible loss of the improved early strains of corn acclimated particularly to the northern portions of the state. Reports from our crop reporters on November 1st show 34.2 per cent of next year's seed corn secured from the fields, 13.2 per cent on hand in form of seed corn from last year, making a total of 47.4 per cent of seed for next year in sight. Special activity in selecting the thoroughly denuded and ripened ears from the fields in the drought stage in the early part of the season, unusual efforts put forth to get all available seed corn from the fields well ripened through fortunate location, special activity on the part of the College of Agriculture, the Wisconsin Experiment Association, and the press on the seed corn situation is in part overcoming the threatened shortage. It is therefore possible that by December 1st enough seed corn will be secured throughout the state to supply the needs of the state for next spring."

Effect of Frost on Potatoes.
"The frost which killed corn on August 20th also killed the vines and stopped the growth of potatoes in the main potato-growing sections of the state. The result has been that a crop promising unusually large yields in midsummer has been greatly reduced, showing itself particularly in the size of the tubers. The early frost killed many of the germs of late blight, and reduced the amount of "late blight rot" on later potatoes coming from these frozen fields. In spite of this, the excessive amount of moisture, the freezing potatoes in the ground, and the late blight rot, and other diseases, will probably bring about a loss of between 25 and 30 per cent.

Autumn Weather Conditions.

(Data from U. S. Weather Bureau.) "The first frost in the state occurred on August 26th, 26th and 30th. It killed all corn and potatoes in the northern two-thirds of the state and in the area extending southward to the western part of Sauk county. The eastern side of the state was also affected in irregular and low areas as far south as Columbia, Dodge and the south central portion of the state. Escaped and here and there the low spots were frozen even so far south as the northern tier of counties. No frosts occurred this year until September 21st and 22nd, and later on the 29th and 30th, when frost occurred in the northern two-thirds of the state. Some of the portions of the southern part escaped frost until October 9th, when a killing frost occurred all over the state."

The rainfall, abnormally heavy throughout the entire summer, reached a maximum precipitation on the night of September 12th and 13th, when 5.2 inches fell in twelve hours at Madison and a large surrounding area, 7.35 inches fell in Dodgeville. In the latter half of September, the entire month of October and the first half of November was abnormally dry throughout the entire state. The total rainfall at Madison to November 15th is 34.22 inches, which is about 5.29 inches above normal, and on September 15th the total rainfall was 31.2 inches, or 6.82 inches above normal. In the period from September 15th to November 15th there has been one of exceptionally high percentage of sunny days and bright weather. The temperature during this time has ranged on an average of 3 degrees above normal."

LIVESTOCK MEN MEET IN CHICAGO SINCE DISEASE STOPS SHOW

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1.—Although there was no international livestock show in Chicago this year, because of the recent foot and mouth epidemic, hundreds of live stock men from various parts of the country gathered here today. Several national organizations of live stock men held their annual conventions. It has been customary to hold these conventions during the international show.

One hundred delegates attended the American Sheep Breeders' Association meeting of the National Swine Growers Association held a luncheon at noon today at the Sherman hotel. This preceded the annual business meeting of the directors, and a similar meeting of the American Hampshire Swine Breeders' Association. C. Halliwell, founder of the Live Stock World; Carl Vrooman, the Bloomington, Ill. boy, who is assistant secretary of agriculture at Washington, and L. E. Coeger of the Farmers' Review were speakers at this luncheon. Other organizations holding their annual board of directors' meetings today were the Stock Yards Inn of America at the Stock Yards Inn, the American Hampshire Breeders' association, at Stock Yards Inn and the American Sheep Registry association, at the Hotel Sherman.

RUSSIANS GUARD AGAINST LIQUOR ON TRANS-RAILWAY

Banishment of Vodka and Liquor from Siberian Railway Has Put Manchuria On Dry List.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Harbin, Manchuria, Dec. 1.—Russia's banishment of liquor has driven vodka from the trains and stations of the Trans-Siberian Railway and in consequence has particularly put much of Manchuria into the prohibition ranks. Being the chief artery of business, the Russian railway is the center of most activities in Central and Northern Manchuria. In many of the smaller places the railway station is the only social center. Before the war vodka was sold at all stations and in the dining cars. Now the patrons of the railway refreshment stands must confine their drinking to non-alcoholic beverages.

At present the railway is used primarily as a route for war supplies and troops, and the successful enforcement of the no-liquor regulation is of such vital importance that Russian officials are very alert. Vodka is smuggled occasionally into railway property, notwithstanding all precautions, but railway employees, passengers and troops in transit across Manchuria have little opportunity to obtain it. The military is so completely in charge of the railway property that liquor smugglers soon come to grief.

Absolute sobriety on the part of railway employees is vital at this time when every moment's delay is serious to the Russian army. The despatching of munition and troops on a single-tracked line requires the greatest care. Sending these trains from Vladivostok to Moscow is much more difficult than it would be to send them from European Russia to Vladivostok. During the Russo-Japanese War the railway was equipped for rush service eastward. Consequently the switches and sidings are more convenient for trains bound for the Pacific Coast.

Passengers riding on the Trans-Siberian line are never permitted to forget the railway is a strategic line. Before a train crosses a bridge soldiers enter the cars, throw open the doors of compartments, make sure there are no windows open, and then signal the train to proceed. At the opposite end of the bridge the soldiers leave the train. No opportunity is afforded Russia's enemies to throw dynamite or other explosives which might wreck one of the bridges now so essential to the Russian army.

Sturdy Russian soldiers, already equipped with high fur caps and sheepskin coats, stand guard even at the most remote points. Every mile of the line is under heavy patrol and there is little opportunity for persons not supplied with proper credentials to encroach upon military property.

Passports of neutrals entering Russian territory at this time must be an oath, certified by a consular agent of the country to which the bearer belongs, to the effect that he was born in that country and is not a naturalized citizen. This certification is necessary before a Russian legation or consulate will stamp a passport for travel in Russia. When a train enters Russian territory, the conductor collects passports along with tickets and these are scrutinized carefully and retained until the Russian officials are satisfied as to the identity of the bearer. Every guest entering a Russian hotel is also required to turn over his passport when he registers. This is sent by the innkeeper to the police officials, who hold hotel-keepers responsible for their guests. The police stamp satisfactory passports and return them to the hotels where the bearers live. Guests are immediately advised in Russian towns that they must not be away from their lodgings after midnight and persons found wandering about after that hour are subject to arrest.

As troops are in training at many points along the Trans-Siberian line and thousands of new recruits are constantly moving westward from Vladivostok, Harbin and other points in the east, the no-liquor provision was very essential to proper morale. Frequently it requires thirty days for a troop train to move the length of the Trans-Siberian line. Trains are delayed for hours at sidings, waiting for the passage of rush shipments of ammunition. Time hangs heavily on the hands of recruits packed into the refreshment places in the Manchurian stations, and if liquor were available trouble would doubtless follow.

Under liquor the Russian privates are extremely brutal. The Associated Press correspondent saw one group of two soldiers in their cups. All wore the gray-green blouses and caps of the service. One of the men, who seemed somewhat worse for liquor than his comrades, said something which offended the rest of the group. One of the men knocked him down. The others jumped upon his body with their heavy boots and kicked him in the face. An old woman rushed to the assistance of the bleeding and bruised soldier. She pushed him away and helped the stunned man to his feet and led him away. The four men followed, but were frightened away by a threat of the woman to report the assault to an officer.

BRITISH ARMY IS WELL PROTECTED AGAINST WINTER FROST

The men and officers in the British trenches are well prepared for their two enemies, King Frost and the exploding German shells. The picture shows a group of British officers wearing their new steel helmets and their winter fur coats.

Italian Lemons in America.
Most of the lemons consumed in the United States come from Italy. The eastern half of the United States is almost wholly supplied from Italy, mainly through the ports of New York and New Orleans. The middle West north of Ohio receives one-half of its supply from Italy. On the other hand, the territory west of the Missouri river, with western Texas, uses almost exclusively California lemons.

Europeans Are Book Buyers.
In the United States only one person in 7,300 buys a book in the course of a year, while in Great Britain it is one in 3,800; in France it is about the same; in Germany and Japan it is better, and in Switzerland it is one in 872. Cheaper books, in paper covers, account for some of this difference; but, whatever the cause, it remains true that the Europeans buy twice as many books per capita as we do.—Atlantic Monthly.

WHAT CAUSES COLDS?

This question is asked every day. A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but often due to disordered blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons fat-foods are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the system better able to withstand the varying elements. This is the important reason why Scott's Emulsion should always be taken for colds, and it does more—builds strength to prevent sickness. Scott's Emulsion contains Natural strength building fats, so skillfully blended that the blood profits from every drop. It is free from harmful drugs or alcohol. Sold at drug stores—always get the genuine.
